2006 da Vinci Award Winner

The da Vinci Awards® recognize individuals, organizations and corporations in the engineering, construction and technical fields whose design innovations have exceeded legally mandated requirements, such as the Americans with Disabilities Act, to further empower people with disabilities.

The first-ever camping tent designed for use by people with disabilities!

Few innovations in camping have ever been met with such acclaim as the Eureka! Freedom tent. The collaborative effort of Eureka! with Blue Sky Designs, a design firm noted for its work in the biomedical and rehabilitation fields, the Freedom was hailed "one of the truly unique new products"* by industry reporters during its unveiling in August 2004. The award-winning Freedom marks the culmination of ergonomics, universal design principles, and assistive technology in this first-ever camping tent designed for use by people with disabilities.

- > 5 pole tapered rectangular dome tent
- > Luxury tent styling also makes the Freedom ideal for couples requiring extra storage space on extended trips

! "Our appreciation of this tent is immense..."

There are many traits to this tent that we found highly impressive... We would highly recommend this tent to anyone with disabilities, as well as those with arthritis or anyone in need of additional storage and added features (such as the side doors) in their tent design."

FREEDOM FEATURES:

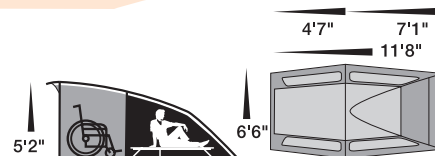

Self-supporting DAC aluminum frame with easy post and grommet attachments plus continuous rod sleeves that guide poles into pole pockets make tent set up possible from a wheelchair from one side of the tent

Exceptionally spacious vestibule provides ample space for two wheelchairs, one wheelchair and a dog, or excess gear, and doubles as a changing room.

Large pull handles on interior door and window zippers make them easy to operate, even with limited dexterity; ideal for use by people with arthritis or limited hand mobility.
